NUMBER 8

Here and There.

Talmage Ebrod was late in his Friday, and when he came out Mr. Edwards said: "Stay in half an hour, Ebrod."

"I couldn't help being late," said Ebrod, "I had an accident; I walked into the door."

Miss Houser: "What is dialogue?"

Arthur Ooff: "Dying on a log."

P. W. Huber: "Miss Watson, what does ed-oach spell?"

Miss Watson: "Clash."

P. W.: "I thought it was clash, and I get 'bedbug' for the meaning."

Miss Alexander: "Girls be quiet!"

Lois Rhynes: "Ma'men, are you talking to me?"

Hazel Dureh: "Is Miss Watson in the room?"

Mr. Sherman: "Yes, she is right here—under this first desk."

Terry Smith was made to stand before the class Tuesday and eat an apple. Wonder if the months of the week other pupils "didn't run water?"

Mr. Edwards wanted to know if John Adams was a patriotic accidental or not.

Thursday when we were having spelling class an incident occurred.

P. W. Huber was caught chewing gum and was shifted to World War II class and chewed it at the same time, the teacher formed the following equation: P. W. plus chewing gum equals to one hour plus a whipping.

Emily Neal was making a talk before English class this week and during the course of her talk, she made the remark: "The women were delayed by ladies. They didn't want to vote."

Last week during Algebra period,

Miss Alexander came in the Sophie Moore class and told the girls to be more like "heath" in their attitudes.

Parade: Mrs. Mahler said: "The boys are expected to march, too—but not in muddy soot."

Anne—Until it turns hot.

Eight Grade Notes.

The past week was examination week and we received our "bulletin" Wednesday. As a result, the Freshmen have now a member of their class, the well-known P. W. Houser, Esq.

Many of the pupils failed to make as good marks this month as they did the first and several are disengaged. We are determined to improve, however, next month.

The first part of this week was rainy and cold, Wednesday there were about twelve absent from our class.

Miss Alexander said we wanted to see us get down to work in English and gave us sixteen pages to study for last Friday.

The Arithmetic class has been getting along fine. A new rule for finding the area of a cylinder was given Thursday, soon after Mr. Sherman had said several times that the area equals the base times the height.

Junior Girls Debate.

An impromptu debate occurred in the tenth grade girls' English class Thursday, which every one thoroughly enjoyed. Although the question was to be debated on paper Miss Houser allowed as the privilege of debating orally. A hot dispute arose regarding the question debated and several funny points were brought up by some of the class members. The debate came to an abrupt end by the ringing of the bell. Each side loudly claims the honor of winning.

Thomaston 13, Tifton 7.

Thomasville was victor over the Tifton football team yesterday by the score of 13 to 7. The game was worth witnessing as it was fast and snappy. During the first few minutes of play Tifton rushed the ball down the field for a touchdown, but they were unable to score after.

It's in those scoreless:

Tifton's team was much heavier than Thomasville's, but was unable to get with our fast, and aggressive team and slaves, who played splendid football!
