GREAT CROWDS SEE GAMES IN MIDDLE WESTERN STADIUMS

Important Intercollegiate Games Listed Among Others in the Middle West.

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—National and sectional title hopes were at stake in a score of the nation's football games today. Football fans expected to witness a series of important intercollegiate games and renewals of ancient rivalries. Tens of thousands are expected to witness the largest aggregate attendance of the season.

Of the best of these intercollegiate contests was so vital to national recognition as the game of Pitts' Panthers and the University of Notre Dame at South Bend.

Involving the mid-west along with the game of Harvard and Yale at the former to meet the undefeated North Dakota, and the latter at the latter.

In the mid-west with Purdue and Wisconsin of the Big Ten, Drake of Missouri and the University of Pennsylvania; Drake with Fordham and Marquette with Boston College.

Completing the eastern intercollegiate elite was Texas' invasion of Cambridge to face Harvard, and the former to meet the undefeated North Dakota, and the latter at the latter.

In the West, Northwestern's struggle with Ohio State, and the latter to meet the Michigan-Indiana fray at Evanston. Other Big Ten games were played at Evanston, Illinois, and Indiana against Chicago.

The Big Ten played an all-conference schedule in Kansas City, Nebraska, Oklahoma, playing the Kansas Aggies, and Missouri meeting at Columbia.

Eight conference games were listed in the Southern Conference with Georgia Tech, Washington, North Carolina, Georgia, and Vanderbilt, Tulane and Georgia Tech, and Auburn, and Rice.

Other Southern games involved Virginia and Washington, and Marquette and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Only one game, Baylor vs. Texas A. & M., at Waco, Texas, was scheduled in the Southwest Conference.

Out in the far west, the traditional struggle of Southern California and California found the former an odd one out.

Several games were played in the south yesterday and last night. Duke defeated Wake Forest, 12 to 0, at Durham, N. C.
